

[0:00:00]

Leity Rodriguez Largo:

Well, this photo interests me for many reasons. I'm someone who is very attracted to color. My father is a painter, and his paintings were always very bright with a lot of manipulation of light and shadow. So that's what I learned, and colorful paintings really appeal to me very much.

[0:00:30]

In addition, this sheen here on their faces and what it says right here, for me, that was very powerful. It says "Lucecita: I carry a people in my voice." I imagine it's a poster for a festival. Yes? It's striking. It serves the purpose of what it needs to be: a poster. Right?

[0:01:00]

But its message is a very powerful one. And it's a message for us immigrants. It's very powerful. It's very powerful because we always carry our story with us here, when we're in the United States. And, no matter what—if you go to another country—that story follows you. It caught my eye.

[0:01:30]