My dear boy-

You certainly seem to be getting on splendidly in your "aggressive campaign", everybody seems to be just as kind and polite as possible. Why don't you let Mrs. Rogers introduce you to some of the Pittsburg girls? I should think it would be fine for you to know some of them, and besides when the mouse is away he [underlined] ought [/underlined] to play. So please begin immediately Mr. Mouse. Do you know I've been trying to write to you ever since before breakfast but everybody has been interrupting so I couldn't. My cousin has just left me. She came down to see if I wouldn't dine with them this evening and stay all night. There is to be a tremendous torch light procession on Broad Street and we will go to see it- whether it's Rep. or Demmy I don't know. Thank you for sending one your Mother's letter to read, I enjoyed it very much, and found the verses peculiarity beautiful and touching, particularly so as I didn't understand more than two words- of all of them- and I don't believe you did either. I wonder what you will do with your holiday to-day little boy- don't spend it in writing up those old cases for the Weekly Notes or in eating chocolate or in going to see the Chief Justice, they all seem to me equally bad. Mother wants me to go down street with her so I must say Good bye. Don't forget to study your collect to-morrow for I intend to hear you say it sometime. Good bye dear.

Lovingly yours,

Daisy.
