

Transcription_HSP_17171

[page 1]

32. East 37th Street.

April 7th. 1881.

My dearest little boy-

I received a letter from you both last night and this morning, reading them seemed to bring us very near to each other dear boy- It will be perfectly lovely if the printers only will keep their promise to you and you are able to come on Friday. Two of your cousins were here yesterday, Ettie and Anna I think. They invited Howard and me and you to dine with them, I said you might come over but I wasn't sure. This morning I received a note from Ettie saying she thought she ought to tell me that they had asked a few others, a Mr. and Mrs. Tupman and two or three gentlemen- so my little boy will have to play "end man" again if he can go. I walked around by myself for a couple of hours this morning, but didn't find it wildly exciting. Howard and I think of spending the afternoon at the Metropolitan Museums, I am trying to persuade him to take me to the circus, but am afraid it is useless. Lunch is ready, so I will say good bye in the hope of seeing you to-morrow.

[page 2]

[page 3]

Very lovingly your Daisy.

P.S. I forgot to say your cousins asked us for

[page 4]

Friday, they dine at 6:30. You had better go there right from the depot hadn't you? or will you have time to go to Mr. Haas first? Good bye again, my darling.

D.

[page 5]

Lawrence Lewis Jr. Esq.
506 Walnut Street
Philadelphia.
Penna.

D.K.
April 11 1881

(51)

[Postmark New York Apr 7 630PM F 81; postage stamp for 3 cents]