My Own Dear Love

I have received no word from my darling yet except the telegram and postal of Friday. How thankful I am that you are not sweltering in this terrible and exhausting heat. I am afraid to look at the thermo but think that I never suffered more from weather in my whole life. I have had to run about a great deal this a.m. and at present have not a single garment on which it is not soaked through & through. Becky is at work washing and ironing today a terrible task in such weather. Our books are beautifully fixe thanks to my efforts of yesterday. Our first morning glory appeared on the vines this a.m. Yesterday I dined at 323 and found your mother & Madge greatly exercised over the non-appearance of their trunks. These however turned up about dessert time. Has your baby carriage appeared? I received a letter this morning from mother at Interlaken which gives an account of their passage over the Gemmi which appears to have been quite a feat. They are going to Mürren up the valley of the Lauterbrunnen and from thence will go to Paris and spend the first two weeks of September.

After that they have formed no plans but have abandoned all hope of Italy and Spain
God bless you and the little one, darling
& send oceans of love

Your Own Faithful
Larry
