Dearest.

I thought I could lay my hand on that invitation of Mrs Starr's but I can't. Anyway it came and I hope you'll go to the shindig. Whatever it is. You might deposit my card too-

I have your green dress, done by Rowland- & will wait I think to pack it until just as I am leaving, on account of the pleats. Saluka has packed our trunks, yours & mine & an extra suit case- but I still have more things that I must get a box or something for. Hanson sent up a lot of boxes when we came you remember- & altho' I am leaving everything possible here, including my beautiful Puss in Corner quilt, there are still too many things for slim wardrobe trunks.

I have filled out the Tax paper & signed before a notary (Mr Haines who keeps garage, Tommy is one also but harder to find) & mailed- so that's done

Also I sent this morn- the bill for damages to car, to poor Charles, as the insurance people requested.

It's raining, so I've been paddling about on my two feet rather than take the shine off beautiful clean car- with its new mud guard- & new running board- the left side looks quite splendiferous.

A congregation meeting this aft. at St. Mary's, to vote that they sell land to me- It certainly has taken a long time to put that through.

Later.

Mrs Ely & H. have just lunched with me, very pleasant company.

Good bye my precious and don't get over tired [wayfaring?]- I think I ought to go down & help you- maybe I will (shall?)-

Your loving,
Mother

Rainy day- the 4th.
