The first apparent contact is about 60° from the solar vertex on the right hand, just when that part of the disc becomes visible by refraction at Philadelphia before the sun's centre rises. A line running from near Cape May through Philadelphia to Lake Ontario, making an angle of about 20° with the meridian, separates those parts of the United States north-eastward, where the whole duration may be seen, from those south-westward, to which the sun will rise less or more eclipsed. At Charleston, $\frac{1}{2}$ the diameter is eclipsed at rising, and the greatest obscuration 10 $\frac{2}{3}$ digits on the northern limb, at a quarter past 6. Magnitude at London, 7 $\frac{1}{4}$ digits, at 11. 46m. P. M.
